Millersville aspires towards sustainability

CARLY O'NEILL
Associate News Editor

With climate change and the polluting impact of human activity on our oceans, protecting our environment has become a priority that is more important than ever. This raises the question of what we are doing as a society to make the environment better. In this case, our campus more eco-friendly.

Dr. Kaiser Ortiz, head of the philosophy department, has been working on this question by providing his feedback.

Steuer announced a Positive Energy Award recently established. This award, according to Steuer, is a faculty and staff project that will "accelerate local solutions to the interconnected economic, social and environmental challenges confronting us as a community, as a local standpoint. This award was based on the Global Goals for Sustainable Development identified by the United Nations as ten goals that would lead on a better, sustainable world for 2030. These goals are: no poverty, hunger and crime, quality education, gender equality, clean water and sanitation, affordable and clean energy, good health and well-being, responsible consumption and production, climate action, and peace, justice, and strong institutions.

According to Steuer, Millersville has been working on several projects to make the campus more eco-friendly. This is why, for the past several years, Millersville was implementing the campus data center as part of the campus’s zero energy building in North Carolina. In addition, the Lombardi Wellness Center has been more energy efficient due to its solar panels, geothermal heating, and energy efficient design. "Our students and faculty are connected on the issues of sustainability even more positively on our campus," Steuer said. "Students can apply for funding for projects of the Positive Energy Award to do work in our community that is in line with the Global Goals for Sustainable Development. They can do that on campus or within the local community.

Students can apply for funding for projects of the Positive Energy Award to do work in our community that is in line with the Global Goals for Sustainable Development. They can do that on campus or within the local community.

The staff involved in its design and implementation were inspired to use the campus as an example of how to power our work by our faculty, students, and staff. "The Positive Energy Award is a community that makes a positive impact on our community and on the world," Steuer said. "Students can apply for funding for projects of the Positive Energy Award to do work in our community that is in line with the Global Goals for Sustainable Development. They can do that on campus or within the local community.

According to the Philanthropy Department, Millersville has a solar array that provides about 25 percent of the electricity needed on campus.

Kaiser Ortiz concluded. Heitsu said that he loves his job and when he's not at work, he enjoys spending time with his family and friends. "I love my job, even when I'm not working," he said.

The lack of labeled reusable dining kiosks on campus can be the main point of discussion. "I think of them in Spanish," Kaiser Ortiz said of his students.

When asked about his favorite part of the university, Kaiser Ortiz said it is the philosophy department, recognizing the intellectual and critical nature of the courses.

"I think of them in Spanish," Kaiser Ortiz said of his students. "They are the ones who bring the ideas and considerations," Kaiser Ortiz continued. Heitsu said that he loves his job and when he's not at work, he enjoys spending time with his family and friends. "I love my job, even when I'm not working," he said.

In response to the student involvement question in the communication department, Millersville plans to increase participation in shared observations and advice. "Students often mistakenly recognize the value of self-advocacy," said Millersville director of the communications department. "I believe students want to hear from their peers and ask questions."

In the future, Kaiser Ortiz hopes to see more campus life. "I'd love for more students to live in campus, college will always be full of students," Kaiser Ortiz said.

The lack of labeled reusable dining kiosks on campus can be the main point of discussion. "I think of them in Spanish," Kaiser Ortiz said of his students. "They are the ones who bring the ideas and considerations," Kaiser Ortiz continued. Heitsu said that he loves his job and when he's not at work, he enjoys spending time with his family and friends. "I love my job, even when I'm not working," he said.

Kaiser Ortiz expressed the "disconnect" he observed on campus by pointing out that students are more aware of issues on the weekend. "Lancaster is saturated with development and it is the more entrepreneurial, driving and creative spirit of the local business folk starts to give Millersville some attention," Kaiser Ortiz said.

"I think we need to give some serious thought to these ideas and considerations," Kaiser Ortiz continued. Heitsu said that he loves his job and when he's not at work, he enjoys spending time with his family and friends. "I love my job, even when I'm not working," he said.

In response to the student involvement question in the communication department, Millersville plans to increase participation in shared observations and advice. "Students often mistakenly recognize the value of self-advocacy," said Millersville director of the communications department. "I believe students want to hear from their peers and ask questions."

In the future, Kaiser Ortiz hopes to see more campus life. "I'd love for more students to live in campus, college will always be full of students," Kaiser Ortiz said.

Change. It is something we fear, something we strive for. These are the goals of the Positive Energy Award, proposed by Kaiser Ortiz. Millersville University under- takes many initiatives to improve the place we know. Three points that Kaiser Ortiz brought up on his view of change were that he loved his favorite part of the univer- sity, the philosophy department, and his favorite professors.

"I think the most positive thing about this place is the students," Kaiser Ortiz said. "They are here to learn and help make our campus more sustainable Millersville.

According to Kaiser Ortiz, the Positive Energy Award is actively involved in promoting a more sustainable Millersville.

"I think we need to give some serious thought to these ideas and considerations," Kaiser Ortiz continued. Heitsu said that he loves his job and when he's not at work, he enjoys spending time with his family and friends. "I love my job, even when I'm not working," he said.

Kaiser Ortiz emphasized the disconnect he observed on campus by pointing out that students are more aware of issues on the weekend. "Lancaster is saturated with development and it is the more entrepreneurial, driving and creative spirit of the local business folk starts to give Millersville some attention," Kaiser Ortiz said.

"I think we need to give some serious thought to these ideas and considerations," Kaiser Ortiz continued. Heitsu said that he loves his job and when he's not at work, he enjoys spending time with his family and friends. "I love my job, even when I'm not working," he said.

Kaiser Ortiz emphasized the disconnect he observed on campus by pointing out that students are more aware of issues on the weekend. "Lancaster is saturated with development and it is the more entrepreneurial, driving and creative spirit of the local business folk starts to give Millersville some attention," Kaiser Ortiz said.

"I think we need to give some serious thought to these ideas and considerations," Kaiser Ortiz continued. Heitsu said that he loves his job and when he's not at work, he enjoys spending time with his family and friends. "I love my job, even when I'm not working," he said.
KAYLIE REX  Managing Editor

The master plan is a comprehensive proposal for the future of the campus that the PASSHE system requires all Pennsylvania state schools to refresh every ten years.

The most recent was published in June 2009. Two years later, Millersville is gearing up to create a new master plan for the future of the campus which they hope to publish by September or October of this year.

“The biggest challenge is accommodating the people who want to see for the future of the university given the reality of the funding that we have,” said Environmental Health and Safety Director Patrick Weidinger.

He explained that creating a master plan is all about balance, because part of Millersville’s culture is the small town feel, but they still want to modernize the campus through the plan.

Sustainability will also be a huge focus of the proposal.

A university steering committee will work with Kimmel Bugryte, an architectural firm, and report back to the community about what issues and areas are worth looking to change. Over the course of the next several months, the committee will host about 30 meetings with all aspects of campus life to properly understand their needs.

The meeting process alone will take about two years to complete. The Kimmel Bugryte Committee will meet at all meetings to learn as much as they can about Millersville.

The committee will conduct surveys to understand the wants and needs of the community, such as street surveys and green futures.

It is still too early to know what specific issues and areas will be of great focus in the next master plan, but Assistant Vice President for Facilities Thomas Waltz has a few guesses. He knows parking and traffic circulation will be a hot topic, due to the potential permanent closure of E. Frederick St. and the temporary loss of the Penn Manor parking garage.

“We want to create a campus where Millersville will look like in the year 2020,” Waltz said. He added that words over 10 years ago when describing Millersville as a center of the town of Millersville a cultural hub with more green initiatives.

However, over time, the plan seemingly died and many community members often discussed how they would like to see the dream restore.

The town has become more rural, stress, art galleys, cafes and restaurants for people to gener-ate more of a community feel. The town feel, but they still want to modernize the campus through the plan.

Sustainability will also be a huge focus of the proposal.

A university steering committee will work with Kimmel Bugryte, an architectural firm, and report back to the community about what issues and areas are worth looking to change. Over the course of the next several months, the committee will host about 30 meetings with all aspects of campus life to properly understand their needs.

The meeting process alone will take about two years to complete. The Kimmel Bugryte Committee will meet at all meetings to learn as much as they can about Millersville.

The committee will conduct surveys to understand the wants and needs of the community, such as street surveys and green futures.

It is still too early to know what specific issues and areas will be of great focus in the next master plan, but Assistant Vice President for Facilities Thomas Waltz has a few guesses. He knows parking and traffic circulation will be a hot topic, due to the potential permanent closure of E. Frederick St. and the temporary loss of the Penn Manor parking garage.

“We want to create a campus where Millersville will look like in the year 2020,” Waltz said. He added that words over 10 years ago when describing Millersville as a center of the town of Millersville a cultural hub with more green initiatives.

However, over time, the plan seemingly died and many community members often discussed how they would like to see the dream restore.

The town has become more rural, stress, art galleys, cafes and restaurants for people to generate more of a community feel. The town feel, but they still want to modernize the campus through the plan.

Sustainability will also be a huge focus of the proposal.

A university steering committee will work with Kimmel Bugryte, an architectural firm, and report back to the community about what issues and areas are worth looking to change. Over the course of the next several months, the committee will host about 30 meetings with all aspects of campus life to properly understand their needs.

The meeting process alone will take about two years to complete. The Kimmel Bugryte Committee will meet at all meetings to learn as much as they can about Millersville.

The committee will conduct surveys to understand the wants and needs of the community, such as street surveys and green futures.

It is still too early to know what specific issues and areas will be of great focus in the next master plan, but Assistant Vice President for Facilities Thomas Waltz has a few guesses. He knows parking and traffic circulation will be a hot topic, due to the potential permanent closure of E. Frederick St. and the temporary loss of the Penn Manor parking garage.

“So, as the year 2020 is only about 10 months away, where is this plan? What happened to the ambitious proposal? The problem lies in the answer: nothing. While Millersville University was meant to address in any meaningful way.”

The plan was simple: have more retail and academic activity has continued. There were a couple of meetings through the years, but, unfortunately, nothing came from them.

“Vision 2020 is a disappointing, abandoned project. Thence Jeffers and Capercce states that vision without execution is delusion,” Capercce recalled these wise words.

While Vision 2020 never saw the light of day, there may be hope in the future for a new plan to implement a more large-scale social change that is appealing to increasing numbers of students.

The Cove and Grill is being washed out due to a new centralization of campus life.

The Cove and Grill is being washed out due to a new centralization of campus life. It is still too early to know what specific issues and areas will be of great focus in the next master plan, but Assistant Vice President for Facilities Thomas Waltz has a few guesses. He knows parking and traffic circulation will be a hot topic, due to the potential permanent closure of E. Frederick St. and the temporary loss of the Penn Manor parking garage.

“So, as the year 2020 is only about 10 months away, where is this plan? What happened to the ambitious proposal? The problem lies in the answer: nothing. While Millersville University was meant to address in any meaningful way.”

The plan was simple: have more retail and academic activity has continued. There were a couple of meetings through the years, but, unfortunately, nothing came from them.

“Vision 2020 is a disappointing, abandoned project. Thence Jeffers and Capercce states that vision without execution is delusion,” Capercce recalled these wise words.

While Vision 2020 never saw the light of day, there may be hope in the future for a new plan to implement a more large-scale social change that is appealing to increasing numbers of students.

The Cove and Grill is being washed out due to a new centralization of campus life.

According to the Director of Dining, Edward Nase, the Grille was originally located in Gordinier Hall, essentially where Saxby’s is located now. When dining closed the former North Side Store, they had decided to use that empty space for the Grille and whatever that was left of the building was converted into a student lounge.

As for the Cove, it has been located at Lyle Hall for over 25 years. It has maintain- ed their deli/convenience store over the years and includes an limited seating area for students.

After the significant de- cline of students and faculty over the past year for the Grille and the Cove, Nase dis- cussed how they will be moving forward with these two services.

“Clearly we need to re-think The Cove in the short to medium term,” Nase explained.

Long-term decisions has not been made. We are in the midst of discussions as to whether we should close The Grille and welcome back to Gordinier Hall,” Nase said.

As for The Cove, we are currently meeting with the Millersville Concerned Men’s and Women’s Groups, who provided many ideas, requests/rec- ommendations.

They asked that we consider students walk across campus to Lyle Hall, the current location for The Cove. For The Cove is idle. Chick-fil-A was very busy on the lot, but in our surprise so was Saxby. Millersville University specifically the location of Lyle Hall may not meet their demographic criteria,” Nase continued.

The Cove is currently in the midst of discussions as to whether we should close The Grille and welcome back to Gordinier Hall,” Nase said.

As for The Cove, we are currently meeting with the Millersville Concerned Men’s and Women’s Groups, who provided many ideas, requests/re- commendations.

They asked that we consider students walk across campus to Lyle Hall, the current location for The Cove. For The Cove is idle. Chick-fil-A was very busy on the lot, but in our surprise so was Saxby. Millersville University specifically the location of Lyle Hall may not meet their demographic criteria,” Nase continued.

The future for The Cove and The Grille is still under- mined. One thing that is cer- tain for Lyle Hall is that the future update will accommodate business growth needs, increase the facility interest, and hopefully grow in volume.

The most recent master plan was published in 2009.
Sex scandals expose double standards across genders

By NAKAI SEXTON
Staff Writer

When films like "Rocky Hor- ror Picture Show" and "Shade- spire in Love" premiered, there were only a few places to watch. Millersville's best-kept secret was the Point of View Cinema.

For many, the Point of View Cinema was the hot spot for foreign and independent movies. It closed sometime in 2015, and the location has remained vacant. In the '70s and '80s, the theater was a staple for students of Millersville and residents of Lan caster.

After all, the theater showed movies that hardly any other places showed. Recently, LancasterOnline reported that Gregg Barley had bought the property with the intent of turning it into "performing arts facility with a microbrewery and tasting room."

Former adjunct professor and Lancaster city resident, Matt Johnson, was thrilled about this decision. "I knew Gregg Barley since I was a teenager and he hosted my band at the Cha-ternon. It was our first real gig," said Johnson.

"The idea that those two worlds that were so formative to who I am as a person–The Point of View and the Cha-termon–essentially coming together is something I still can't even express," "Johnson continued.

As of now, there are not many performing arts venues in the immediate Millersville area, save for the Winter Visual & Performing Arts Center. Halls like "Vista 2022," which was created with the intention of bringing more entertainment and restaurants to the area by 2023, have since relinquished.

The announcement took a lot of people by surprise, but in a good way. "There are a bunch of us out there who treat that weird momosha, dump, cricket-black building like a type of church," Johnson said.

"It was a lot of work and love. It was a great project. It was a great experience. It was a great project you'll ever meet," Johnson said.

"I think there will be a microbrewery going at the Millersville Zoning Hearing Board on Feb. 28 to request approval to develop a microbrewery and commercial use," "Gregg has integrity and he'll pull off something really amazing in that spot, I know it," said Johnson.

NICK HUGHES
Opinion Editor

The Student government association held a "meet the candidates" event on Monday, Feb. 25 as they head into elections that end on March 4.

The Student government association (SGA) held a meet and greet on Monday, Feb. 25 at the Student Memorial Cen ter (SMC) in the Atlin.

The various candidates were able to sit down with the general membership and answer any questions they might have. Running for student body president is the current president, John Totera, and Brandon Harper. Harper has been running unopposed for director of student life. Director of academics, a new position in the SGA is being ran for by Brittany Goren. Ryan Malesic is running for director of finance unopposed.

No one is officially running for director of organization, but there is a write-in option for the position as well as all the other positions.

The election went live on Monday and will end Mon day, March 4.

Have an eye for news? Contact the News Editor at news@thesnapper.com
AUSTRALIA FACES RECORD-BREAKING CLIMATE CHANGE

 Extreme weather conditions including raging bushfires in northern New South Wales, to a monsoon flooding in Queensland has been the source of Australia's rapid climate change. In January of 2019, Australia found itself in a heat wave, breasting temperature records.

 According to CNN, “New South Wales broke 16 heat records and eight January records. Conditions are so hot in the state that asphalt roads are starting to melt” in north-western Australia, the town of marble Bar hit the highest temperature during the heatwave thus far at a high of 120 degrees fahrenheit.

 On Saturday, Feb. 23. The aid arrives Saturday, Feb. 23. The aid was never allowed into the country; to show that he still remains in control, Maduro closed those border crossings to the state's military to make concrete actions have been taken to address the humanitarian crisis in Venezuela with inflation, and many cars are lacking basic items to survive. An aid convoy was organized by Juan Guaido, the leader of the National Assembly, to deliver aid to the people of the country, with the help of the U.S. along with other countries are making promises to step in an help. Pence said that “all options are on the table” for a U.S. intervention, but no concrete actions have been outlined. Other countries are wary of armed or unarmed actions, and some Brazil’s government said they will not let the U.S. intervene from their territory.

 It is currently uncertain what steps the U.S. and the world will take in response to the situation in Venezuela, but many hope that aid will be allowed through as soon as possible.

 PHOTO COURTESY OF WIKIPEDIA

 VENEZUELA'S POLITICAL CRISIS ESCALATES AMID MADURO’S BORDER BLOCKADE

 Since Nicolás Maduro's election in 2013, the country is in chaos, as multiple stages in its political process, the latest of which is Maduro and the Venezuelan military blocking foreign aid at the border.

 According to the BBC, Juan Guaidó, the leader of the National Assembly, declared that Maduro’s presidency was illegitimate, and claimed the presidency for himself. There have been multiple internet outages for a month now, which is a large reason why many Venezuelans have been left without electricity. On Feb. 23. The aid was never allowed into the country; to show that he still remains in control, Maduro closed those border crossings.

 Most of the country's residents remain loyal to Maduro's rule, but some have defected. Guaidó has said that defectors will receive amnesty, but only a small number has dared to go against Madu ro's fear of imprisonment or torture.

 On Saturday, civilians attempted to cross the border to get the aid and to stores for food and medicine, but the military opened fire on them and two people died. Other incidents similar to that one has occurred since then, and the U.S. along with other countries are making promises to step in to help. Vice President Mike Pence has said that “all options are on the table” for a U.S. intervention, but no concrete actions have been outlined. Other countries are wary of armed or unarmed actions, and some Brazil’s government said they will not let the U.S. intervene from their territory.

 It is currently uncertain what steps the U.S. and the world will take in response to the situation in Venezuela, but many hope that aid will be allowed through as soon as possible.

 PHOTO COURTESY OF WIKIPEDIA

 "It dumped an unprecedented 1.4 metres of rain in less than two weeks—roughly double what falls on London in a year”

 Due to the extreme heat, New South Wales health authorities warned that the high temperatures are expected to continue to “High ozone” air pollution across high temperatures are expected to continue to "High ozone” air pollution across the state.

 PHOTO COURTESY OF WIKIPEadia

 "It dumped an unprecedented 1.4 metres of rain in less than two weeks—roughly double what falls on London in a year”

 Due to the extreme heat, New South Wales health authorities warned that the high temperatures are expected to continue to “High ozone” air pollution across the state.
The Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change has published a report that proves that climate change is primarily at the hands of humans.

The Green New Deal is a step towards a prosperous future

James Black would also state “Present thinking holds that man has a time window of five to 10 years before the need for hard decisions about changes in energy strategies might become critical.” This was over 40 years ago. The election of Donald Trump and the nomination of Scott Pruitt to the EPA did not help. Regulations and other climate protections got decreased or eliminated. The fossil fuel has an enormous influence on our political system. It still receives millions of dollars in subsidies. We cannot rely on the free market or small government programs to prevent the worst effects of climate change. The captains of industry and our government leaders have failed us.

Yet, Sunrise, a movement led by young people decided to stand up and fight back. Founded in 2017 and has since been hard at work. Pushing for politicians to refuse fossil fuel contributions. In November of 2018, Sunrise helped elect several politicians. They ran on the Green New Deal and refusing fossil fuel money. They included Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez, Ilhan Omar, and Rashida Tlaib.

Later that month Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez along with Sunrise and Justice Democrats introduced a resolution to create a select committee to create a Green New Deal. Sunrise called Nancy Pelosi, the speaker of the House. She supported the Green New Deal and show bold leadership in regards to the climate crisis.

The Green New Deal is akin to the New Deal which helped during the Great Depression. It is a bold resolution that will aim to transition our economy to zero carbon in our air and help reduce the Green House effect. It would be by strengthening communities that are susceptible to climate disasters. This will be by building sea walls and other protections. The G.N.D. will provide worker protections, stronger unions, and access to good healthcare and benefits. It will respect the rights of Native Americans and end the practice of taking land by eminent domain. Lowering the use of pipelines that will increase the effects of climate change. The G.N.D. will make the U.S. a major exporter green technology to other countries.

The Green New Deal is not insignificant compared to the effects of climate change. There is no debating that we need to take bold action. Climate change does not make concessions and there can be no compromising when it comes to the future of our planet. The cost of the Green New Deal is insignificant compared to the effects of climate change. We need to take bold action and demand our representatives to co-sponsor the Green New Deal.
The Oscar Snubs Crossword Puzzle

Across

1. Mr. Rogers
2. Aflame
5. 12-year old sues his Negligent Parents
6. A View into American Educational, Racial and Wealth Conflicts
8. Cover your Tracks
10. Documentary about the Recovery of a lost film from Singapore
12. Father tries to Save his son from addiction

Down

1. Story in Chicago about Four Wives of Deceased Crooks
2. Before Highschool
3. DNA
4. About the Musician Daryl Harris
5. A Teddybear that loves Marmalade
6. From Jacques
7. Father tree to Save his son from addiction
9. Documentary about the Recovery of a lost film from Singapore
11. Shush
12. A Luckless Experience at Sketchy Hotel in California

The Oscar Season

The traditional Oscars Award Ceremony this year was unorthodox. Many viewers may agree with the results, while many might not. Regardless, the promotion of the movies gained notoriety. Whether it was welcome or not.

The Oscars were searching for more viewership. The kerfuffle that ensued from all the controversy gave quite the spectacle. The matter started over the movie Black Panther. The proposed Popular Movie Category that never happened. It further ignited a debate between what movies were deserving of the Oscar praise.

As a result, the nominees were a mixed bag. Some movies seemed more in the scope of a typical Oscar nominees adored by critics. Others were blockbusters that spoke more to audience approval. Varying from person to person, the results are good, bad or mixed. The fact that so many conversations over this topic is what may have made this particular Oscar season so beautiful.

People were fervent in their conversations of the stories they fell in love with last year. There were deeper thoughts taken into account into what people saw in the theaters. Those that got snubbed began the process of analyzing by their avid fans. Those cheering for Black Panther, for example.

Movies that got snubbed brought into so many conversations about them. Movies such as Paddington 2 and Won’t you be my neighbor.

The limelight was beyond the stage of the Oscars because these films got noticed by multitudes of people. The Academy ignored many of these films. The initiatives of other folks decided to let these stories become popular.

The ramifications of the academy was an engagement in discussions over the merits of last year’s films. In past years, there were few that would question the legitimacy of the nominees, and thus little intrigue into what the films were about. The authority of the Academy unquestioned, and movie criticism by audience was in.

The controversy may have been a needed catalyst to allow people to consider the merits of the films they get to witness.
Jussie Smollett set the LGBT community back in an unmeasurable way

By MICKAYLA MILLER

Editor in Chief

Sometimes, even as a journalist, I feel like I can be a hard feat. There’s too much good in the world, and I count my lucky stars that these are the type of things I largely have the privilege of reporting on, but there’s also a lot of things in the world that make my stomach churn.

As someone who considers themselves an intersectional feminist, a proud LGBT community member and an agent for social change, the Jussie Smollett story broke my heart. Hearing that there was a tactical attempt lynching of an esteemed gay, black actor honestly made me sick to my stomach. It took a few days to process, and even longer before I was able to read more than just a headline about the situation.

But eventually, I relented my social feeds, and started reading about the situation. Allegedly, Jussie Smollett had poured an unidentified chemical on himself and finished him off with a rope around his neck, according to the Associated Press. My mind flashed to the first time I watched the film The Lady in Black. President Roosevelt told the story of Matthew Shepard, a gay man who was tortured and left to death and to the white tiled to a fence.

Suddenly, I didn’t feel safe. I’ve tried to remain cautiously optimistic about gay rights in the United States. While things are moving in the right direction as far as state by state anti-discrimination laws, physical and mental acts of violence — especially against transgender women of color — remain ever-present. I know that forward momentum can not take place until we acknowledge and protect all members of the LGBT community from violence.

At first, I commented Smollett for being so brave, going forward and telling his tale. Had he been telling the truth, the amount of guilt that would have been taken would have surely propelled acts of violence against LGBT members into the spotlight of mainstream media. That, in turn, would have shed a light on the situation, possibly even real social change.

But then, it didn’t. Smollett, along, by doing so, royally messed up his chance to make a positive change in the United States.

It was recently reported that Smollett paid two men $3,150 to attack him, in efforts of promoting his career, not as a way out. This puts women’s rights back into a hole even further.

As women become more and more independent, and as the number of women in the workforce continues to rise, the more women want to be the manager, the boss, the leader. The more women want to be in control of their own lives. The more women want to have an opinion, and the more women want to make an opinion this option should be taken away.

If there are people who don’t agree with abortion, then that’s their prerogative. It’s the same with the right to choose. If there’s a way to remove that option for others, then it should not be allowed. And even in this situation and aren’t able to decide whether they will be financially and financially to raise a child.

Since President Trump is not someone who will ever be able to personally think this option, as a whole, I believe that if someone doesn’t already believe a woman, then they don’t get to have an opinion on this issue.

It is just not something that man will ever be able to deal with, at least in terms of what they deem to be legal. Women who have the potential to be directly affected by this decision and tampered with the opinions and morality.

While the government currently has an abortion policy in place, this policy change is clearly visible. It is a well-known act of violence that could be completely illegal in other countries. It’s a concern of the consequences of this are dire. The likelihood of abuse could be so increase as women become more dependent on them as a way to only to women’s lives. Long-term consequences of this, women could potentially be caught while involved in this situation and could be incarcerated, facing intense criminalization.

If we live in a world without the option of abortion, it would be the ultimate shame of this country to make low-income, young or other- wise unable women feel the need to end their lives. Women are being held hostage in this situation.

Our women could have their baby and try to support it. Even if it looks as if they could self-induce termination with things such as illegal abortions, dangerous contraceptives of turpentine and black or even just self-inducing abortion.

In the end, the punishment may not be severe, or don’t have the means to get proper prenatal care, which will affect the health of the child.

The likelihood of abuse could be so increased as women become more dependent on them as a way to only to women’s lives. Long-term consequences of this, women could potentially be caught while involved in this situation and could be incarcerated, facing intense criminalization.

If you follow Miller University’s Instagram account, you have probably noticed the ongoing food truck remarks in the comment section. Students are very passionate about getting the food truck back on campus to offer their delicious streetfood, burgers, and chicken fingers.

The food truck made its debut on campus in 2013 when the sures were in construction. The truck was converting to give students another food location and to feed construction workers in the area. According to Pat Benson in a 2015 press release, the truck pitched out into town events, and eventually began popping up all over campus for the convenience of students who did not have time to go to a regular dining hall.

Even since that beautiful day, the food truck put smiles on students faces with quick, easy, and delicious meals. Until this school year, when our beloved food truck was ripped from our hearts only to be seen for special occasions and sporting events. Like a dashy, forgotten toy, the Marauder Express sits outside Gardner just waiting to be used again.

One group of students decided to create an Instagram account solely dedicated to their passion for bringing back the food truck. The account, @mufoodtruck, comments on pretty much every Instagram post on the university. On a President’s Day post, @mufoodtruck commented, “The Presidents would want to have a food truck.”

On another post, Dr. Wubah was pictured with Pennsylvania Representative Bryan Cutler, and the food truck was mentioned, “Did they discuss bringing back the food truck?” Dr. Wubah actually replied in the comment saying that he is working on it. The review of the Marauder Express page says that they want the food truck back for the reason that it is bringing to campus various different Ville-A-Nature, which are burgers with cheese, turkey, chicken, and even a veggie option.

While things are moving in the right direction, it seems that forward momentum will be subject to the rulings of ever being a successful, non-controversial actor. He made a mockery out of real, unjust violence against members of the LGBT community. Now that his lies have been unmasked, future victims of abuse who are come forward will be subject to the same amount of skepticism Smollett faces now.

The LGBT community will need to find a way to push through this. This is not the time to be distracted away. If your friend or fam- ily-member confides to you about acts of violence, believe her. Contrary to what we see with Smollett, reporting hate crimes, fake, or not, is a means of propelling your so- cial stories forward.

Whether Smollett realizes it or not, he has become the face of an intersectional movement, a movement that has supported him this far. The LGBT community will remain ever-prevalent. I will remain an intersectional feminist and support those who may be in a tough situation and could be desperate for social change.

There’s a lot of good in the world. If you follow Millersville University’s Instagram account, you probably noticed the ongoing food truck remarks in the comment section. Students are very passionate about getting the food truck back on campus to offer their delicious streetfood, burgers, and chicken fingers. The food truck made its debut on campus in 2013 when the sures were in construction. The truck was converting to give students another food location and to feed construction workers in the area. According to Pat Benson in a 2015 press release, the truck pitched out into town events, and eventually began popping up all over campus for the convenience of students who did not have time to go to a regular dining hall.

Even since that beautiful day, the food truck put smiles on students faces with quick, easy, and delicious meals. Until this school year, when our beloved food truck was ripped from our hearts only to be seen for special occasions and sporting events. Like a dashy, forgotten toy, the Marauder Express sits outside Gardner just waiting to be used again.

One group of students decided to create an Instagram account solely dedicated to their passion for bringing back the food truck. The account, @mufoodtruck, comments on pretty much every Instagram post on the university. On a President’s Day post, @mufoodtruck commented, “The Presidents would want to have a food truck.”

On another post, Dr. Wubah was pictured with Pennsylvania Representative Bryan Cutler, and the food truck was mentioned, “Did they discuss bringing back the food truck?” Dr. Wubah actually replied in the comment saying that he is working on it. The review of the Marauder Express page says that they want the food truck back for the reason that it is bringing to campus various different Ville-A-Nature, which are burgers with cheese, turkey, chicken, and even a veggie option.

While things are moving in the right direction, it seems that forward momentum will be subject to the rulings of ever being a successful, non-controversial actor. He made a mockery out of real, unjust violence against members of the LGBT community. Now that his lies have been unmasked, future victims of abuse who are come forward will be subject to the same amount of skepticism Smollett faces now.

The LGBT community will need to find a way to push through this. This is not the time to be distracted away. If your friend or fam- ily-member confides to you about acts of violence, believe her. Contrary to what we see with Smollett, reporting hate crimes, fake, or not, is a means of propelling your so- cial stories forward.

Whether Smollett realizes it or not, he has become the face of an intersectional movement, a movement that has supported him this far. The LGBT community will remain ever-prevalent. I will remain an intersectional feminist and support those who may be in a tough situation and could be desperate for social change.

There’s a lot of good in the world.
Remembering Dr. Rita Smith-Wade-El

Throughout Millersville’s lifetime as an institution for higher education, there has been a plethora of influential professors who have marked this campus during its rich and full history.

Dr. Rita Smith-Wade-El was such a professor, who tragically passed away on the morning of December 29th.

Dr. Smith-Wade-El was a professor of psychology and African American studies, and acquired her B.A. at Barnard College in psychology while obtaining her M.A. and Ph.D. from the University of Pennsylvania.

She had a passion for not only teaching and passing down her wisdom to other students, but acting as a mentor, giving students guidance in their daily lives as well as for their future life plans.

Though Dr. Smith-Wade-El had a tremendous amount of love and compassion for her students, she demanded the best work out of them and expected a great deal out of those who took her classes.

Perhaps no student knows this better than Brittany Brown, Dr. Smith-Wade-El’s student and personal student worker, who she knew personally for about five years.

“As a professor, she was pretty tough in a good way. She really cared about student’s well-being. She was approachable and took the time to have a conversation with her students. Her classes were a lot of work, but she taught things that would help you succeed.”

She felt so passionate about student success that she often went to extreme measures to make sure her student’s were living up to her high expectations.

Close friend, Dr. Tracey Weis, an associate professor of history, highlights Dr. Smith-Wade-El’s dedication to her students, saying, “There are a lot of other professors who say, ‘It’s the student’s responsibility,’ they’ll do whatever they want.

“Dr. Smith-Wade-El left a significant impression on those who knew her. While she is no longer here physically, the legacy she left behind on campus will always be remembered.

The legacy left behind will not be forgotten. While Millersville has lost a person of great influence and character, certainly has left an immense impact on the community and the legacies she left behind will not be forgotten.”

However, as her coworker and friend, Dr. Clarence Maxwell put it, “She always said she never measured success. She didn’t want people to live guiltily. She wanted no pity or sorrow. She wanted love.”

Dr. Weis remembers Dr. Smith-Wade-El fondly. “There’s so many ways in which Rita lit the way for people. “Even at the very end in giving us a lesson in not just how to live well, but how to die well.”

“It was part of what one of our friends called radical secular, which is to be straightforward, not to be afraid of death, it was dying and also to live to the fullest in the very last moments of life.”

Don’t mourn mental. She didn’t want people to grieve too much. She had a passion for not only teaching and passing down her wisdom to other students, but acting as a mentor, giving students guidance in their daily lives as well as for their future life plans.

As someone who battled with triple-negative breast cancer for ten years, she faced some difficult challenges.

Additionally, a trait that many remember of Dr. Smith-Wade-El was that she hated anyone who would not do their best.

“One of the things that’s most memorable about her is her deep compassion for other people. She could, and did, often speak forcefully. But it was always on behalf of someone else. She’s one of the most generous people that I knew. She wanted her little for herself, but wanted very much for others.”

While Millersville has lost a person of great influence and character, certainly has left an immense impact on the community and the legacies she left behind will not be forgotten.

Know a professor or student who is doing something exceptional? Contact the Features Editor at features@thesnapper.com
How students spend their snow days

Eason Clark, an entertainment technology major, takes a different route to his snow days—rather than staying in bed or relaxing. After months playing Super Smash Bros. with his roommates, he organized a Smash tournament using the tournament setting of the video game offers.

Clark said “it was perfect because no one was busy due to the snow. We had 17 competitors total and everyone had a blast.”

Karrah Kerk, a speech communication major, prefers a more relaxing way to spend his snow days:

She likes to find steep hills around town and go snow tubing with her friends.

She said when she was little she was terrified of heights and sledding down steep hills, but that she has not only grown used to it, but that it is now her favorite way to spend a snow day.

Other responses to the question “How do you spend your snow day?” included sledding, making puzzles, building snow men, making hot chocolate, cooking breakfast, and catching up on homework.

Despite all these different answers to the question, Millersville students are no strangers to snow days, especially not after this winter has been anything but mild.

Brenna Fallon, a digital journalism major and artist, enjoys going on snowy walks and taking her camera with her to capture stills of the campus covered in snow.

PHOTO COURTESY OF BRENNA FALLON

Write the WRITE way at the Writing Center!

The Writing Center in the Library in the McNairy Library is the perfect place to get papers proofread.

No one has perfect writing, especially on their first draft. Whether it’s knowing where to start with an unclear prompt, questioning if the writing or content is cohesive, or just needing a second eye to look over an essay before it’s handed in for the final grade, the Writing Center in the McNairy Library is there for students no matter what the writing issue is or where they are in the general writing process.

Varied English majors are hired to work in the center and enjoy reading over papers and helping students learn from their writing. However, many students do not take advantage of the valuable opportunity that is open to them in the Writing Center. The current student manager of the center, Nathan Warren, a junior English education major, believes the Writing Center is a great resource for all students.

“Everybody could use a second opinion on their writing and there are things that anyone might miss or not consider if they’re writing and only thinking of it in one way. So having a second reader is really helpful.” No matter the topic of the paper or the major, every student learns from getting another pair of eyes to look over the piece. Even if it seems the essay is fine, the writer at least getting someone else to read it over can never hurt; in fact, it’s almost guaranteed that something positive and constructive will come from that.

Since the students in the Writing Center are English majors, writing essays is a main component of their lives already and they genuinely enjoy helping students get better with their writing. Warren explains, saying “My favorite part about working in the Writing Center is the people that we work with and seeing that you helped someone out. There are times when you and the person you tutored both come away from an appointment feeling like you helped a lot better about the paper. It’s both relief and ‘Yeah, that was meaningful, what I just helped with.’

The Writing Center takes appointments for half an hour per each student. Appointments can be made by calling (717) 872-7388 or by sending an email to writingcenter@millersville.edu. The center also takes walk-in appointments on a first-come, first-serve basis. They offer online tutoring as well for revised papers which can be returned to the student within a 72 hour period at most.

To get help with an important essay or any other writing, visit the Writing Center in Room 106 of the McNairy Library on Mondays-Thursdays from 1pm – 9pm or on Fridays from 1pm – 9pm.

Know a professor or student who is doing something exceptional? Contact the Features Editor at features@thesnapper.com
One Day at a Time” gives diverse representation to the family sitcom.

much about the family and may the seasons the audience learns member of the Alvarez clan. Pe the family's apartment, but also Elena, Lydia (Rita Moreno). is best for her family eran who is just trying to do what revolve around Penelope Alva

The family's landlord, Other characters in the Al

As and important conversation on men training women with re-

The characters' development across all three seasons has been handled delicately and with com-

From the characters' initial moments of questioning in sea-

The audience have seen the character grow into a strong and confident young Latinx queer woman.

Her new non-binary love interest, Yes, character Hector's come along a welcome amount of experiment and challenge for Hector's growth as well as she strives to stay connected to her family and stay vibrant in her old age.

Justina Machado brings nice humor and much of the show's dramatic leads as Penelope

The character like many oth-

The fact that these characters feel so real is a great testament to find themselves growing very at-

The ground-breaking character develop-

One aspect that makes “One

Throughout the season, the

just been handled with so much

The characters' development

Grandma opens up a curtain when

As things change, the PROfoundly Rita Moreno.

The characters' development across all three seasons has been handled delicately and with com-

From the characters' initial

just been handled with so much

One of the most exciting sto-

At 87 years of age, Moreno

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTESY OF YOUTUBE

PHOTO COURTURES
Lego Movie 2 builds a reality for growing up

The Lego Movie’s smash hit in 2014 showcased a fantastic world portrayed through the mind of a small boy. It was an exciting adventure of different characters finding out that they’re all special, and that “everything is awesome when you’re part of a team.” It showed a happy, innocent side of childhood. Everything was always great in the world for themselves after the invasion was the dad who didn’t want the characters to have realistic expectations for their future. He was the one who didn’t want the characters to have grown up like the boy (and Lego characters) in the movie. And that helped the message resonate. The kids watching had to go through the same difficulties shown in the movie, and hopefully the messageprovided some clarity to what they are going through in a way that parents couldn’t.

The Lego Movie 2 shows the important process of growing up from the “everything is always perfect” reality to the one we all still show that you have to act like a kid sometimes.

It again explores the idea of fitting in and working as a team, but that in reality always turns out great in the end.

The joke of the jokes in the movie really

- Photograph courtesy of Youtube

Ryan Murphy’s new installment of American Crime Story: The Assassination of Gianni Versace takes the viewer on a journey through learning that Emmett to grow up, because everything isn’t always awesome.

Emmett to grow up, because everything isn’t always awesome. Everything is ragged and tough-looking, and only Emmett, the main character, is still a happy and light-hearted guy. Everyone else in the tone keeps asking Emmett to grow up, but eventually, this is terrible in the new town. The premise of the theme is that not everything is always as great as the first movie suggested. The plot takes audiences on a journey through learning that sometimes you lose loved ones and things aren’t always fun.

It again explores the idea of fitting in and working as a team, but that in reality always turns out great in the end.

The joke of the jokes in the movie really

- Photograph courtesy of Youtube

Ryan Murphy’s new installment of American Crime Story: The Assassination of Gianni Versace takes the viewer on a journey through learning that Emmett to grow up, because everything isn’t always awesome. Everything is ragged and tough-looking, and only Emmett, the main character, is still a happy and light-hearted guy. Everyone else in the tone keeps asking Emmett to grow up, but eventually, this is terrible in the new town. The premise of the theme is that not everything is always as great as the first movie suggested. The plot takes audiences on a journey through learning that sometimes you lose loved ones and things aren’t always fun.

It again explores the idea of fitting in and working as a team, but that in reality always turns out great in the end.

The joke of the jokes in the movie really

- Photograph courtesy of Youtube

Ryan Murphy’s new installment of American Crime Story: The Assassination of Gianni Versace takes the viewer on a journey through learning that Emmett to grow up, because everything isn’t always awesome. Everything is ragged and tough-looking, and only Emmett, the main character, is still a happy and light-hearted guy. Everyone else in the tone keeps asking Emmett to grow up, but eventually, this is terrible in the new town. The premise of the theme is that not everything is always as great as the first movie suggested. The plot takes audiences on a journey through learning that sometimes you lose loved ones and things aren’t always fun.

It again explores the idea of fitting in and working as a team, but that in reality always turns out great in the end.
I am rooting for Manny Machado. There is no doubt that all 300 million he is going to receive. Good for you, Manny.

All of this being said, I’m rooting for Manny Machado. The fact that he had a 10-year deal from the Padres proves that he is just in it for the money. The Padres probably won’t be a playoff team after this deal. The team is just trying to win their first World Series championship. Manny Machado wants to win a World Series and he has the chance to do it now.

I think the Padres are upset with Machado, because he left them for the short-term gain. My ability won’t be a play-off team. I don’t think the Padres are going to build around, and this fast. I think choosing to sign with the Padres helps him escape all of this. The Padres have their superstar to build around, and this fast forwards their rebuild by a couple of years. I’m really excited to see what Machado can do on the field. It’s a good fit for him.

I think this is a great deal for both sides. The Padres are excited to have Machado on their team. They are excited to see what he can do on the field. He is a great player and I think he will be a great addition to the Padres.

I am rooting for Manny Machado. I think he is a great player and I think he will be a great addition to the Padres. I think he is the best player in baseball and I think he will be a great addition to the Padres.

I think this is a great deal for both sides. The Padres are excited to have Machado on their team. They are excited to see what he can do on the field. He is a great player and I think he will be a great addition to the Padres.

I am rooting for Manny Machado. I think he is a great player and I think he will be a great addition to the Padres. I think he is the best player in baseball and I think he will be a great addition to the Padres.

I think this is a great deal for both sides. The Padres are excited to have Machado on their team. They are excited to see what he can do on the field. He is a great player and I think he will be a great addition to the Padres.
The Snapper MU

The Marauders had a great turnaround to their dismal start to the season.

The Marauders in game one against Clarion destroyed the oppositions' bats, as the team had a great win.

Another one of coach Shehan's recruiting tools is social media, @coachshehan is his Twitter handle, and if you are a fan of baseball you should follow him, the coaching staff and the players have always been active on the social media. @coachshehan is his Twitter handle, and if you are a fan of baseball you should follow him, the coaching staff and the players have always been active on the social media.

Despite giving up the lead, Millersville started out on a very strong note, looking good and continuing their momentum from the games against Clarion. Starting pitcher Steve Miller recorded his first win of the season pitching five innings, striking out four, and only allowing two runs in the fifth inning. John Samuel fought out of a jam in the fifth inning securing the first win of the season for Millersville.

The Bats continued to hit the ball well, going up eight runs with a five run first inning. As the Marauders picked up right where they left off in game two as Millersville would be able to win the game, and the season for the Marauders.

Four different Millersville batters recorded three hits each against Lake Erie. Goodラーマラード

Millersville's home opener against Clarion was a big win for the team and the season.

However, Millersville was 3-0 on the weekend and would look to keep their record to 3-0 as they would face Fairmont State, Glenville State, and Concord in Glenville West Virginia, March 1st through the 3rd.

SPORTS

After slow start, Marauders turn around

JARED KISH Sports Editor

After a slow start in the season the two teams would go against Lander University. Millersville basketball quickly jumped out to a 12-5 lead in the first game of four this past weekend down in Maryland. Millersville forced Clarion and Lake Erie and the Marauders had a great turnaround to their dismal start to the season.

The Marauders in game one against Clarion destroyed the oppositions' bats, as the team had a great win.

Another one of coach Shehan's recruiting tools is social media, @coachshehan is his Twitter handle, and if you are a fan of baseball you should follow him, the coaching staff and the players have always been active on the social media. @coachshehan is his Twitter handle, and if you are a fan of baseball you should follow him, the coaching staff and the players have always been active on the social media.

Despite giving up the lead, Millersville started out on a very strong note, looking good and continuing their momentum from the games against Clarion. Starting pitcher Steve Miller recorded his first win of the season pitching five innings, striking out four, and only allowing two runs in the fifth inning. John Samuel fought out of a jam in the fifth inning securing the first win of the season for Millersville.

The Bats continued to hit the ball well, going up eight runs with a five run first inning. As the Marauders picked up right where they left off in game two as Millersville would be able to win the game, and the season for the Marauders.

Four different Millersville batters recorded three hits each against Lake Erie. Goodラーマラード

Millersville's home opener against Clarion was a big win for the team and the season.

However, Millersville was 3-0 on the weekend and would look to keep their record to 3-0 as they would face Fairmont State, Glenville State, and Concord in Glenville West Virginia, March 1st through the 3rd.

SPORTS

After slow start, Marauders turn around

JARED KISH Sports Editor

After a slow start in the season the two teams would go against Lander University. Millersville basketball quickly jumped out to a 12-5 lead in the first game of four this past weekend down in Maryland. Millersville forced Clarion and Lake Erie and the Marauders had a great turnaround to their dismal start to the season.

The Marauders in game one against Clarion destroyed the oppositions' bats, as the team had a great win.

Another one of coach Shehan's recruiting tools is social media, @coachshehan is his Twitter handle, and if you are a fan of baseball you should follow him, the coaching staff and the players have always been active on the social media. @coachshehan is his Twitter handle, and if you are a fan of baseball you should follow him, the coaching staff and the players have always been active on the social media.

Despite giving up the lead, Millersville started out on a very strong note, looking good and continuing their momentum from the games against Clarion. Starting pitcher Steve Miller recorded his first win of the season pitching five innings, striking out four, and only allowing two runs in the fifth inning. John Samuel fought out of a jam in the fifth inning securing the first win of the season for Millersville.

The Bats continued to hit the ball well, going up eight runs with a five run first inning. As the Marauders picked up right where they left off in game two as Millersville would be able to win the game, and the season for the Marauders.

Four different Millersville batters recorded three hits each against Lake Erie. Goodラーマラード

Millersville's home opener against Clarion was a big win for the team and the season.

However, Millersville was 3-0 on the weekend and would look to keep their record to 3-0 as they would face Fairmont State, Glenville State, and Concord in Glenville West Virginia, March 1st through the 3rd.

SPORTS

After slow start, Marauders turn around

JARED KISH Sports Editor

After a slow start in the season the two teams would go against Lander University. Millersville basketball quickly jumped out to a 12-5 lead in the first game of four this past weekend down in Maryland. Millersville forced Clarion and Lake Erie and the Marauders had a great turnaround to their dismal start to the season.

The Marauders in game one against Clarion destroyed the oppositions' bats, as the team had a great win.

Another one of coach Shehan's recruiting tools is social media, @coachshehan is his Twitter handle, and if you are a fan of baseball you should follow him, the coaching staff and the players have always been active on the social media. @coachshehan is his Twitter handle, and if you are a fan of baseball you should follow him, the coaching staff and the players have always been active on the social media.

Despite giving up the lead, Millersville started out on a very strong note, looking good and continuing their momentum from the games against Clarion. Starting pitcher Steve Miller recorded his first win of the season pitching five innings, striking out four, and only allowing two runs in the fifth inning. John Samuel fought out of a jam in the fifth inning securing the first win of the season for Millersville.

The Bats continued to hit the ball well, going up eight runs with a five run first inning. As the Marauders picked up right where they left off in game two as Millersville would be able to win the game, and the season for the Marauders.

Four different Millersville batters recorded three hits each against Lake Erie. Goodラーマラード

Millersville's home opener against Clarion was a big win for the team and the season.

However, Millersville was 3-0 on the weekend and would look to keep their record to 3-0 as they would face Fairmont State, Glenville State, and Concord in Glenville West Virginia, March 1st through the 3rd.